Medication-Assisted Treatment

MAT is the use of FDA-approved medications with counseling and behavioral therapies to provide a “whole patient” approach to treatment. MAT is tailored specifically to each individual. The medication can help relieve withdrawal symptoms while counseling promotes positive behavior and lifestyle change.

Medication-Assisted Treatment

There are 3 FDA-approved medications that can be used to treat Opioid Use Disorder (OUD)

- * Methadone
- * Buprenorphine
- * Naltrexone

Each medication differs in the way it works to relieve symptoms of opioid withdrawal. Overall they work to:

- * Normalize brain chemistry
- * Block the euphoric effects of opioids
- * Relieve cravings
- * Normalize physical functions without withdrawal effects
